WALKER OF THE WEEK

My Walker of the Week is pretty straight forward this week – it is of course 24 year old Dane Bird-Smith who took the bronze medal in the Olympic 20km walk in Rio last Friday afternoon. His time of 1:19:37 saw him only 23 seconds behind Chinese gold medallist Wang Zhen and was a 1 second PB, slightly faster than his 1:19:38, done in finishing 4th in the IAAF Race Walking World Teams Championship 20km in Rome in May. Add to that his win in the World University Games in South Korea last year and his second placings in the last the Chinese 4 Day Racewalk Classics and you see a young walker with the world at his feet.

And see a nice article from Athletics Australia to celebrate the bronze - http://athletics.com.au/News/bronze-for-the-birdman.

The Australian 20km all-time rankings change slightly with Dane's faster time and he is certainly now within striking distance of all except Nathan Deakes whose 2005 time of 1:17:33 remains what is for the moment an untouchable standard.

OLYMPIC UPDATE

The first of the Olympic walks was held last Friday afternoon at the beachside Rio suburb of Pontal. With a top temperature of 22C and with a light wind, conditions were good and there were plenty of good spots to watch what was one of the few free events of the Olympics. Unfortunately, the course was not ideal, with the 1km lap having very narrow turns at either end. Add to that the complete lack of facilities for spectators – no toilets, no stalls selling drinks or food or souvenirs – and an otherwise great event was diminished. Unless the organisers are prepared to spend a bit more money and provide some facilities for the spectators next Friday, it's going to be a tough day for both competitors and spectators, with the 50km at 8AM and the women's 20km at 2:30PM.

Men 20km Race Walk, Friday 12 August, 2:30PM

Phil Minshull reported very nicely for the IAAF (see https://www.iaaf.org/news/report/rio-2016-mens-20km-race-walk1).

Despite the presence of Olympic champion Chen Ding and world champion Miguel Angel Lopez, the pre-race favourite on current form was China's Wang Zhen and the winner at the IAAF World Race Walking Team Championships in Rome back in May didn't disappoint. He pulled away from a seven-strong leading pack at 17km and quickly established a lead which proved to be insurmountable before winning in 1:19:14. His strategy was a mixture of astute championship racing and pure gambler's luck.

Great Britain's Tom Bosworth was the leader for much of the first half of the race, edging to the front just before the 4km mark and then laying down the gauntlet for everyone to follow. Initially, he was tracked by Kenya's African champion Samuel Gathimba who followed him a few strides behind until just before 8km, when he got on the Briton's shoulder. However, Gathimba was to start struggling soon afterwards and drifted backwards rapidly before dropping out just after 18km.

Bosworth passed the halfway point on his own in 40:10 with Japan's Daisuke Matsunaga coming out of the chasing pack and passing 10km five seconds in arrears, with the 22-strong group another seven seconds further back. Notable at this point was that Chen Ding was almost certainly not going to retain his title or even get on the podium. The 2012 Olympic gold medallist had looked uncomfortable in the leading pack for several kilometres. After the 10^{th} km he had got detached and was trailing six seconds off the back of the main pack and down in 26^{th} place. Lopez also looked far from his usual calm and controlled self and was hanging on grimly at the rear of the challenging group.

Over the next 2km, Bosworth sped up and was within eight minutes for the next 2km split around the Pontal course. But Matsunaga was race walking even faster and had closed the gap to two seconds, while China's Cai Zelin decided to protectively cover the two men in front of him and had pushed hard to remove himself from the pack. World Race Walking

Team Championships silver medallist Cai continued to motor and overtook Matsunaga and then Bosworth but the pack also started to increase their pace, consuming Bosworth and Matsunaga just before the 14km checkpoint and Cai shortly after, making it a 12-man mass together entering the final quarter of the race.

The pack – which also contained local hope and Brazilian record-holder Caio Bonfim, who was getting rousing cheers every step of the way – was reduced to nine over the next lap with Cai, whose cadence can best be described as a resembling a boxer doing his road workout, pushing the pace at the front. This remained the state of affairs until Wang, a much more fluent and elegant race walker than his teammate, made his decisive bid for glory with 3km to go.

He quickly put four seconds between himself and the chasers, still led by his compatriot Cai, with the penultimate lap taking just 7:42, the fastest split of the race at that point. This was just a prelude to what Wang was able to unleash over the final 2km, a split of 7:26, which Cai had no way of countering. After Wang had crossed the line in 1:19:14, Cai came home 12 seconds later, the winner having put an additional eight seconds between himself and the man in second place over the final 2km. Coming home third was an utterly delighted Dane Bird-Smith of Australia who managed to pull away from Bonfim over the final 1km lap to take the bronze medal in a personal best of 1:19:37. The evidence of what getting a medal meant to Bird-Smith could be seen barely a minute after he crossed the line when the realisation that he would be on the podium led to him starting to sob uncontrollably on the shoulder of Bosworth.

Bonfim missed out on what would have been a memorable medal by five seconds – the highest any Brazilian race walker of either gender had finished before at the Olympics was 14th – but he had the consolation of setting a national record of 1:19:42. Germany's Christoper Linke finished fifth in 1:20:00 with the early leader Bosworth finishing a hugely commendable sixth in a national record of 1:20:13. Further down the field, Miguel Angel Lopez got something of a second wind and finished 11th while Chen was down in a disappointing 39th place, more than four minutes behind the winner.

Further back, Tom Bosworth smashed the British record for the 20km race walk as he hung on to finish sixth. It was the best performance by a British race walker since Paul Nihill finished sixth in the 20km at the 1972 Olympics and was a well-deserved success for the Leeds-based athlete after he had boldly led for the first half of the race. Bosworth clocked 80:13 to take 28 seconds off his national record. The Canadian walkers were all in the mix at various times but it was Evan Dunfee who held on best, finishing 10th with 1:20:49. Further back, Australian Rhydian Cowley walked well to finish 33rd in 1:23:30. Unfortunately our other Australian Jared Tallent withdrew in the weeks leading up to the event to concentrate on his 50km race next Friday.

Finally a bit of Australian Olympic T&F history. While the two oldest Aussie athletes at Rio this year at Scott Westcott (40 years and 10 months) and Lisa Weightman (37 years and 6 months), the oldest ever are racewalker Willi Sawall (42 years and 8 months) and marathon runner Susan Hobson (42 years 6 months). And what a walker Willi Sawall was!

VRWC ROADWALKS, MIDDLE PARK, SATURDAY 14 AUGUST

Another good turnout at Middle Park last Saturday with 46 walkers in action in our final Points races for the winter. Quite a few PBs – great walk by Rebecca Henderson in the 8m (40:57) and well done to Glenys Brain and Sue Wood who upped their distances yet again, completing the 6km event this week. They seem to be really enjoying challenging themselves each week in their first season with the club.

BRWC ROAD WALLKS, LAKE WENDOUREE, BALLARAT, SUNDAY 14 AUGUST

Thanks to Kerrie Peart for the results of last Sunday's Ballarat Race Walking Club races. She reported

In the glow of the Olympics and after the brilliant Olympic Bronze performance of Australian's Dane Bird-Smith, a small keen Ballarat Racewalking contingent raced the Graeme Nicholls 6km Handicap around Lake Wendouree. Inspired by the Olympics, our juniors Fraser Saunder and James Pendred walked their first Lap of Lake in very good times. Sarah Brennan and Alanna Peart were both having a hit out before their upcoming Australian Championships, with Alanna winning both on handicap and fastest time with a massive 2:52 PB.

Graeme Nicholls - History

Ballarat born athlete Graeme Nicholls (1948-2015) along with his family were keen athletes. Graeme successfully mixed running and walking, and progressed quickly through the walking junior ranks setting Country, Victorian and Australian records. Along with his sister Alison, they both went on to become Australian Open racewalking champions. In 1967 at 19years, Graeme won silver in the Australian 2 Mile Track Championships, and from then on until his retirement in 1973 he was amongst our top walkers. Graeme still holds the following records: Vic U20 Country 15000m (1:19:14 1966); Vic Open Country 30,000m (2:32:40 1969), Vic Open Country 15000m (1:08:59 1970). After retiring from walking, Graeme became an official and administrator, and in 2012 was honoured 50 yrs AV Membership. http://www.vrwc.org.au/tim-archive/articles/wv-graeme-nicholls.pdf

OUT AND ABOUT

- NZ walker Alana Barber is interviewed ahead of her Olympic debut this coming Friday. Now based in Melbourne and working under the watchful eye of Aussie supercoach Brent Vallance, the last 2 years have seen a huge improvement and there is more to come. See http://www.athletics.org.nz/News/barber-determined-to-improve.
- It has been a vastly different landscape for our elite walkers since the closure of the AIS Scholarship program in 2012. A timely but relatively depressing discussion of Australia's 'Winning Edge" High Performance program see https://theconversation.com/are-the-rio-2016-games-a-true-measure-of-australias-winning-edge-63648.
- Chris Erickson talks ahead of his 50km https://www.facebook.com/ChrisErickson50km/videos/1125968547478454/.
- And more about Chris Erickson as Olympic veteran and Rio commentator Tamsyn Lewis-Manou takes the third time Olympian on in a very rainy game of Bocce, talking walking, coaching, Melbourne gold medal presentations and whether there's a third generation of Erickson racewalkers in the midst. Chris competes 9pm AEST August 19th in the 50km racewalk. See https://youtu.be/YoePoyO5syw.
- RaceWalk.com's Jeff Salvage is is Rio and is underway with his excellent photostories of the Olympic walk. He has already photoshot the men's 20km and it's great http://racewalk.com/PhotoStory2016Olympics/OlympicCoverage.php.

#CLEANSPORT

While the spotlight is now rightly on the Olympics, the issue of drugs is never far from the surface, as evidenced by the continuing threads being published almost daily. I think that renowned Irish sports journalist David Walsh summed it up nicely when Ethopian Almaz Ayana set a new 10,000m track run world record last Friday evening.

Almaz Ayana's 29mins17secs for 10,000m. We can't accuse because there's no evidence and we can't believe because there's no trust.

Anyway, onto this week's threads.

Tuesday 9 August

- OLYMPIC swimmers and coaches have lost complete faith in FINA amid revelations swimming's governing body inexplicably let two convicted drug cheats escape out of competition testing for five months last year. As Australian swimmers grow "annoyed" at being targeted by Olympic testers in their own village before races, which some believe is a deliberate payback for speaking out against doping, the sport is on the verge of revolt after years of apathy. News Corp can reveal dopers Ning Zetao of China and Russian Yulia Efimova were not tested once by FINA in the five months immediately after they were controversially crowned world champions last year. See https://www.heraldsun.com.au/sport/olympics-2016/convicted-drug-cheats-escaped-out-of-competition-testing-before-rio/news-story/1a8d97cd2cd846d8d9c973391e4a71ad.
- Mack Horton, 20 and Lilly King, 19 are among the new breed who will no longer swim alongside former cheats without having something to say about it on pool deck. How many more swimmers will it take to speak out before these Olympics, and indeed any other international meet, become untenable without rule change? See http://www.abc.net.au/news/2016-08-09/rio-2016:-young-swimmers-set-the-pace-in-fight-against-doping/7710996?section=sport.
- Kenyan police have arrested the country's athletics manager who was sent home from the Rio Games after allegations he was asking for cash in return for warning athletes before drug tests. See http://www.sportsfan.com.au/kenya-official-arrested-over-doping-claims/tabid/91/newsid/207117/default.aspx.
- Lilly King, the 19 year-old American swimmer who was inspired by Mack Horton to "call out" Russian drug cheat Yuliya
 Efimova before their showdown in the pool, has sensationally told a press conference that US world champion sprinter
 Justin Gatlin should not be competing in Rio. See http://www.couriermail.com.au/sport/olympics-2016/us-swimmer-lilly-king-says-drug-cheat-justin-gatlin-should-not-be-allowed-at-the-olympics/news-story/a6e9f910dd3ad032983ff64b99f52d6a.
- The efforts of Italy's 3,000 metres steeplechase champion, Moroccan-born Jamel Chatbi, to compete in the Olympic Games have been blocked by the National Anti-Doping Tribunal, which has defied a court ruling and suspended him for missing three scheduled doping tests last year. See http://www.insidethegames.biz/articles/1040446/italian-out-of-rio-2016-after-anti-doping-tribunal-defies-order-for-prime-minister-to-make-sure-he-travels-to-olympics.
- Polish weightlifting Olympic medal contender Tomasz Zielinski has been kicked out of Rio for a positive doping test, his nation's Olympic Committee says. The Polish Olympic Committee said an examination of the European champion's bsample confirmed the original finding, with Zielinski testing positive for the steroid nandrolone at an out-of-competition test on July 31. See http://www.sportsfan.com.au/pole-out-of-olympics-for-doping/tabid/91/newsid/207119/default.aspx.
- As part of ongoing retests from the 2008 anbd 2018 Olympics, 4 more athletes have now been retrospectively banned no walkers this time for a change! See https://www.olympic.org/news/ioc-sanctions-four-athletes-for-failing-anti-doping-tests-at-beijing-2008-and-london-2012.

Wednesday 10 August

- Olympic chiefs are considering copying British attempts to resurrect lifetime drugs bans by making athletes sign contracts waiving their right to compete at the Games if caught doping. The International Olympic Committee confirmed such contracts would be among the options explored in response to the Russian doping scandal after president Thomas Bach said he wanted to resurrect life bans for drugs cheats. See http://www.stuff.co.nz/sport/olympics/83028946/ioc-might-follow-british-route-to-enforce-lifetime-drug-bans.
- After only three full days of competition in Rio, journalists from around the globe were peppering the International Olympic Committee with questions. The topic: one of sport's stinkiest, with a stench that seems to become more pronounced here by the day. On Tuesday, members of the world's sporting press wanted to know just what the IOC is going to do about a tense and ugly fallout that appears to be escalating, rather than fading away, as the 2016 Olympics take full flight. Now, athletes are hurling the most incriminating of insults at one another; Australia's Mack Horton being but one who has openly called a rival a cheat. Similar narratives are being writ large in publications like The New York Times about American athletes, like Lilly King, who has been as subtle in her disapproval of Russian swimmer Yulia Efimova as Horton was about Sun Yang. # See http://www.theage.com.au/sport/olympics/rio-2016/olympics-off-the-field/ioc-defends-testing-protocol-as-stench-of-drugs-furore-grows-stronger-20160810-gqp9pd.html.
- Italy's Alex Schwazer has had his appeal against an eight-year ban for a second doping violation turned down by the Court of Arbitration for Sport. The CAS decision, which had been pushed for by the IAAF, came through earlier than expected. "All competitive results obtained by Alex Schwazer from and including 1 January 2016 are disqualified with all resulting consequences, including forfeiture of medals, points and prizes. Schwarzer will now be stripped of his IAAF World Race Walking Team Championships title he won in Rome. The gold medal will pass to Australia's Jared Tallent, who had also finished second to Schwarzer at Beijing 2008. See http://www.insidethegames.biz/articles/1040503/schwazer-banned-foreight-years-by-jaaf-after-court-of-arbitration-for-sport-reject-appeal.

Thursday 11 August

- Kenyan track and field coach John Anzrah was sent home from the Rio Olympics after he posed as an athlete and gave a urine sample in a doping test, Kenya's Olympics chief told Reuters on Thursday. Anzrah is the second Kenyan official to be sent home from the Games over drugs allegations. See http://www.sportsfan.com.au/kenyan-coach-sent-home-in-disgrace/tabid/91/newsid/207459/default.aspx.
- Excellent article in which performance-enhancing and banned drugs are explained nsee http://www.abc.net.au/news/2016-08-11/rio-2016-olympics-drugs-guide/7651832.

Friday 12 August

- The Olympic pool has been rocked by reports Chinese swimmer Xinyi Chen has failed a doping test. Brazilian news website estadao.com is reporting that the 18-year-old returned a positive blood test prior to arriving in Rio for the Olympic Games. It's believed the Chinese swimming association was informed two days ago of the suspension and have taken the matter to the Court of Arbitration. Chen finished fourth in the women's 100m butterfly final. See http://www.triplem.com.au/sydney/news/blog/2016/8/rio-2016-reports-chinese-swimmer-fails-a-doping-test/.
- The Rio Olympics athletics competition has yet to begin but there has already been a doping dished out with Bulgarian athlete Silvia Danekova confirming on Friday that she had failed a doping test at the Olympics in Rio for blood booster EPO. The 33-year-old, who was due to compete in the women's 3000m steeplechase on Monday, tested positive a few days after her arrival in Brazil on July 26. She has been suspended pending the result of the test on her B sample, sources told Reuters on Thursday. See http://www.nzherald.co.nz/athletics/news/article.cfm?c_id=19&objectid=11692839&ref=rss.

Saturday 13 August

- Doping in athletics could be slashed overnight if sponsors showed any will to eradicate it, according to Steve Magness, the coach who blew the whistle on an elite Nike-sponsored athletics programme but now feels like a pariah in the sport as a result. Magness says Nike in particular can make a big impact as the dominant US sponsor by refusing to support athletes who have ever tested positive. He criticised its backing of 2004 Olympic 100 metres champion Justin Gatlin, who has twice been banned for doping and who will line up at Rio. See http://www.sbs.com.au/news/article/2016/08/13/sponsors-missing-action-war-doping-whistleblower.
- Polish weightlifter Tomasz Zielinski and his brother Adrian were thrown out of the Rio Olympics after testing positive for banned substances, CAS said on Friday. See http://www.sbs.com.au/news/article/2016/08/13/zielinski-brothers-out-rio-games-doping.
- Now this is an interesting one. It was reported on Saturday that the IAAF has banned long jumper Darya Klishina, Russia's only T&F athlete allowed to take part in the Rio Olympics. Klishina was originally allowed to compete in Rio because she was based in the US and had regular testing outside Russia. Reports from Russia indicated last week that new information from Richard McLaren's WADA report led to the re-evaluation of Klishina's case. we wait for further details. See https://www.theguardian.com/sport/2016/aug/13/darya-klishina-russia-rio-olympics-banned.

Come Sunday and German sports journalist Hajo Seppelt published the further information on which we have been waiting. His explanation as follows: According to the recently published report of the WADA independent commission lead by Richard McLaren, one of her urine samples contained the DNA of two different people. Wow! See http://m.sputniknews.com/sport/20160815/1044264287/wada-klishina-doping-test.html.

Klishna's appeal was fast tracked by CAS and was held on Sunday. In a surprising outcome, CAS ruled early Monday morning that she is eligible to take part in Tuesday's qualifying rounds of the Long Jump. CAS ruled that Klishina was eligible to compete because she fulfilled the requirements set by the IAAF. See http://summergames.ap.org/article/latest-uzbek-boxer-dusmatov-wins-light-flyweight-gold.

• The current Russian drugs fiasco is nothing new. Great article which details their program in 1983 when, months before they announced a boycott of the Los Angeles Olympics, sports officials of the Soviet Union sent detailed instructions to the head of the nation's track and field team. Oral steroid tablets were not enough, they said, to ensure dominance at the Games. The team should also inject its top athletes with three other kinds of anabolic steroids. Worth reading to gain some historical perspective on such matters. See http://www.nytimes.com/2016/08/14/sports/olympics/soviet-doping-plan-russia-rio-games.html?ref=international&_r=0.
